Q4 2025 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Mackenzie Financial Corporation

Market Commentary

In the fourth quarter of 2025, a U.S. government shutdown left a data-dependent U.S. Federal Reserve Board without reliable economic data. The absence of timely economic releases introduced significant uncertainty, which was only partially resolved when the shutdown ended in November. For markets more broadly, the monetary easing that had provided a boost for riskier assets began to fade.

In Canada, the economy was resilient. The Bank of Canada held its policy interest rate at 2.25% in December. The decision was supported by positive data. Third-quarter 2025 gross domestic product rose 2.6%, while the labour market improved. The unemployment rate fell to 6.5% in November, its lowest level in 16 months, as the economy added over 50,000 jobs per month for three consecutive months.

Outlook

Looking ahead to 2026, the Fund has a neutral duration stance, based on the sub-advisor's geographic views. The Fund has overweight exposure to Canada and underweight exposure to the U.S. In the U.S., the sub-advisor believes that expectations for interest rate cuts may be too optimistic given underlying economic strength. In Canada, the potential for softer growth, primarily because of lower immigration and housing weakness, suggests prolonged monetary easing. The sub-advisor has a cautious outlook on longer-term bonds because of fiscal deficit concerns. Therefore, the Fund's Canadian exposure is concentrated in bonds with terms of five years or less.

In credit, the sub-advisor is focused on higher-quality issuers and defensive sectors, such as utilities and pipelines, which have more predictable cash flows. The Fund has underweight exposure to the automotive and shipping/logistics industries, where the impact of trade dynamics could be more pronounced. The sub-advisor believes that mergers and acquisitions could be a theme in 2026 and is positioning the Fund toward well-capitalized companies that could be consolidators.
